One day God told Noah to build an Ark and gather together two of each animal except clean animals. Noah was supposed to take seven each of these. He told Noah that he would send a great flood over all the earth to clean away the wickedness. And he said that Noah and his family would be safe inside.

Noah did what God told him to with the help of his three sons Shem, Ham, and Japheth. They built the Ark out of gopher and didn't stop until they were done; even though many people laughed at them.

When he was done and the animal were in the ark, God made the rain come and it stayed forty days and forty nights.

The first dove that Noah sent out after the rain couldn't find anywhere to rest, so it came back to him. After that, Noah waited seven days and then sent out another who came back with an olive branch. Noah knew that the water was finally going away.
